HOST CITY Břeclav

Břeclav (Czech pronunciation: [\[ˈbrɛtslaf\]](#); German: Lundenburg) is a town in the South Moravian Region of the Czech Republic. It has about 25,000 inhabitants. Located at the Czech-Austrian state border and near the Czech–Slovak state border, it is an important railway hub.

The area was settled by first Slavic tribes already in the 6th century. In the late 8th century, a large Slavic gord, today called Pohansko (meaning 'a paganish place'), was established southeast of the today's town. In the 9th century, it became a significant centre of Great Moravia. An agricultural settlement probably existed in the area of Old Břeclav, and the gord served as a hiding place for its inhabitants. In the 10th century it was abandoned.^[5]

About Kunovice

- Small town that is part of a larger agglomeration of 90.000 people who live in the nearby cities
- It is famous for many cultural events, the most important one being "The Ride of the Kings" - listed on the Unesco list
- With a number of sports teams (softball, football, handball, shooting club)
- Aviation industry (small sport aircraft manufacturer, Aviation Museum)

About the region

Kunovice
